

Lundgren Monuments Showcases Memorial Action Figures

SEATTLE, WA— Lundgren Monuments is proud to announce the introduction of artist Michael Leavitt's handmade memorial action figures in their new death care boutique. From the company that introduced the first large scale, cast glass monument to the American Cemetery, Lundgren Monuments continues to re-invent the way that we approach the memory of our loved ones. Michael Leavitt's action figures are one of a kind, hand carved clay, with moving arms, legs, hands and arms. At 61/2" tall, these memorial action figures are often accessorized with tool boxes, wine glasses, surf boards and King salmon. Michael references client provided photographs to sculpt these realistic and very playful figures.

For the display sample in Lundgren Monuments store, founder Greg Lundgren commissioned Mr. Leavitt to make one of Greg's recently passed father, who happened to love salmon fishing. He found it important to be the test subject, to see how he responded to a 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>" version of his father. Greg Lundgren explained, "It was really amazing. Every day I pass by him I can't help but smile, and CONTINUED ON PAGE B6

Lundgren Monuments creates a Special Memorial in California

SEATTLE,WA— This is a special memorial made by Lundgren Monuments of Seattle for a young man in California whose life was ended much too short in his first few weeks of college. The Lundgren staff worked with his family very diligently to design and fabricate a memorial that reflected both his spirit and religion. The base and first upright are made from Crystal White granite (courtesy of Pacific Coast Memorials) with the upper section made from optically clear cast glass, containing an etched nine pointed star and separated by a natural bronze band. The California sun will keep it glowing and illuminate for centuries to come.

The American Heart Association's national movement to make women aware of their risk for heart disease, Go Red for Women educates and encourages women to take action to reduce their risk for heart disease—the Number 1 cause of death among women.

Thanatometics by Kelco... The Art of Creating Lasting Impressions

The Thanatometics Starter Set

MINNEAPOLIS,MN— Kelco Supply Company is pleased to announce the newest addition to its line of mortuary cosmetics with the release of the Thanatometics Starter Set. The set is an eleven piece grouping that includes one medium-tone item from each of the eleven major categories in the complete cosmetics system. The exclusive, state-of-the-art mortuary cosmetics system is custom-designed by restorative art professionals with funeral directors and the families they serve in mind. Thanatometics products are available in a full spectrum of naturally appealing tones and easy to apply textures specifically formulated for use in an extensive range of restorative art treatments.

Kelco identified the shortcomings of existing mortuary cosmetic products and recognized the great need for improvement, so naturally, extensive research and development in the deathcare profession and cosmetics industry went into the initial production, field testing and introduction of Thanatometics by Kelco. The mortuary-specific formulations utilize the finest ingredients available and the latest scientific advancements in the production of cosmetics, all accomplished with one goal in mind; to create the perfect blend of science and art in one extraordinary line of revolutionary mortuary cosmetics for today's restorative art practitioner.

In addressing funeral directors' needs, a Kelco representative stated, "The clientele you serve may not understand to what extent restorative art results are achieved, especially when it comes to the technicalities of the actual embalming process. They do, however, know the difference between what's acceptable and what's outstanding. What the eye beholds becomes the lasting impression; that's the true 'art' of restorative art. It's the 'Art of Creating Lasting Impressions' and it speaks volumes regarding the reputation of your firm." For 69 years, Kelco has been providing all the instruments, equipment, chemicals, cosmetics and the many other products needed to achieve superior embalming and restorative art results. Thanatometics by Kelco sets a new standard and raises the bar!

Thanatometics by Kelco was inspired by the growing demand for a full-spectrum line of naturally occurring and appealing mortuary cosmetics tones specifically designed to meet the practical needs of today's restorative art practitioner. Rather than giving each of the products a highly subjective and impractical color name, Kelco chose to assign individual Thanatometics products a specific tone value within a range; this approach makes color selection and blending virtually fool-proof. Tone ranges for most product categories include one Mid-Tone, multiple Light-Tones and multiple Dark-Tones.

The complete Thanatometics by Kelco line is comprised of Pressed Powder Foundation for Opaque, Translucent or Sheer Coverage; Liquid Foundation for Silky Translucent Coverage; Crème Foundation for Velvety Opaque Coverage; Loose Powder Foundation & Finish for Sheer Coverage; Concealer & Touch-Up Stick for Crème-to-Powder Coverage; Eye Hi-Lites with Satin Glow Finish; Complexion Hi-Lites with Satin Glow Finish; Lip Color Palette; Color Corrector Palette; Lip Detail Color & Brush; Eye Detail Color & Brush and Hydration Plus Pre-Application Treatment.

If you would like to request additional information about Thanatometics by Kelco, please contact their Customer Care Team at 1-800-328-7720 or email order@kelcosupply.com.

WILTON, CT— UndergroundHumor.com is pleased to announce that Patience, the first in The Tombstone Photographs™ series of collectible art by acclaimed photographer Robert Zott, is available for sale on its website.

Robert Zott takes photographs of tombstones...not your average tombstones. Each bears a single last name that is also a common English word. To locate his subjects, he physically surveys over 10,000 tombstones per week, selecting only those without given names, dates, or epitaphs.

For Zott, it is essential that the tombstones are real, and that his photographs are not altered or manipulated in any way. When describing his work, he cites Michelangelo who said, "The greatest artist has no single concept that a marble block does not contain already."

The New York Times said, "Mr. Zott cleverly manipulates our perception of these memorials." He achieves this by: 1) using the orientation or ex-posure of the photographs to create metaphors for life and death, 2) using the names of living persons, locations, or fictional characters to create paradoxes between existence and nonexistence, and 3) using various names to create black comedies or cautionary tales.

Robert Zott's award-winning photographs have been selected for dozens of exhibi-

Free Newsletter teaches funeral home owners Marketing Techniques for Increasing Revenue

OSHKOSH,WI— While many funeral homes struggle to maintain their bottom line—especially in today's sluggish economy—some funeral homes are doing better than ever. The difference maker is marketing. Or so says Scott De-Menter, founder of Six Feet Above™, publisher of a free, biweekly newsletter just introduced that teaches funeral home owners how to create and implement marketing strategies and tactics that help them increase revenue.

"The biggest difference between the most successful funeral homes and all the rest—good economy or bad—is not location, staff, facilities, or heritage. It's marketing. And I don't mean the aggressive, prey-on-the-vulnerable type of marketing. I mean the kind that finds fresh ways to create preference in the community, and in doing so, differentiates itself from the competition based on value so it can attract more customers and charge a premium for its services and products."

In addition to his experience marketing for the funeral industry, Mr. DeMenter has also been a marketer for a number of international business-to-business and nonprofit organizations. According to DeMenter, "Going from marketing in the funeral industry to marketing in far more competitive industries and back again has taught me some of the most effective strategies and tactics that 95 percent of funeral home owners aren't even aware of." He added, "Marketing is something I've always been passionate about. And being able to channel this passion toward the needs of funeral home owners is incredibly fun and rewarding. That's why I gave our newsletter the name LOOK ALIVE! The World's Greatest Funeral Home Marketing Newsletter. It's a bit over the top, but I like to think it's true. Although, since it's the only newsletter of its kind, I suppose you could also say it's the world's worst." Marketing topics covered by the newsletter will include: creating more effective advertising; getting more referrals; acquiring positive public relations; pricing for profitability; understanding consumer psychology; creating competitive differentiation; developing effective direct mail; learning customer service secrets; and dozens of other marketing issues. Six Feet Above's stated mission is to help funeral home owners better understand and implement marketing strategies and tactics that will dramatically increase revenue, word of mouth, and success. To subscribe to the free LOOK ALIVE! newsletter, sign up at www.Six-Feet-Above.com.

"Receiving a 2008 American Graphic Design Award is a great honor," stated Joe Weigel, Wilbert Vice President of Marketing. "These awards are one sign among many that our marketing communications efforts are effective and paying dividends for our licensees and the funeral homes they serve."

A Little Booklet written by a Funeral Director that truly reflects the Survival Instincts of Grievers

EDINA, MN— In his capacity as a licensed funeral director and a certified grief counselor, Steve Mitchell wrote a wonderful little booklet for grievers titled "It's OK! - A Journey Through Grief."

Steve had heard those attending his grief support groups at the funeral home he managed in Florida tell their fellow grievers over and over again that "it's OK" to share their fears and emotions. From this experience, Steve decided that it was important to tell other grievers that "it's OK" to have these feelings and that many grieving people weren't going crazy. Steve put together many of these thoughts into a little booklet and gave the booklets away to those he came in contact with. Soon, other funeral homes, hospice organizations and victim advocacy groups began ordering the booklets. Each page includes a poignant thought. It's just 3" x 3" and is 32 pages in length. This little booklet that has been widely distributed throughout the southeast is now available nationally on the Grief Resources Catalog website (www.griefresourcescatalog.com).

Since many grieving people really do experience loss of memory, forgetfulness, lack of concentration and confusion following the death of a friend or loved one, Grief Resources Catalog also offers a colorful coffee/ tea mug that can remind them that they're not crazythey're just grieving. One side of the mug says "Grief Can Make You Think You're Going Crazy." The other side lists the symptoms of grief. The mug is dark purple and blue design on white mug. Sturdy stoneware mugs hold 12.5 oz. of liquid, dishwasher and microwave safe

For additional information or a free, printed catalog of the more than 50 different grief booklets, books and video tapes available on the website catalog or to order materials, contact Grief Resources Catalog on the Internet at www.griefresourcescatalog.com. Write to Grief Resources Catalog at 5021 Vernon Avenue, #209, Edina, MN 55436. Call (952) 922-3469. E-mail: griefrc@ griefresourcescatalog.com.
